Preface

This document holds notes for the class I took in Spring 2026, Italian 100 for Beginners and Travelers. Each class is a chapter. The notes closely match what we cover in class, with additional comments, explanations for my own use, and examples I've picked up. The notes may (likely do!) contain mistakes.

0.1 Class in a nutshell

1. Nouns, articles, adjectives, and their relationships
2. Possessive adjectives
3. Prepositions
4. Present tense: stare, to stay, vs. essere, to be, when expressing feelings
5. Present progressive stare vs. essere
6. Present conditional: vorrei, etc.
7. Modals

Chapter 1

Jan 17

Topics Nouns and adjectives. Quantitative adjectives. Negation. Helper verbs. Greetings.

1.1 Grammar

1.1.1 Nouns - gender and articles

Italian nouns are gendered, masculine or feminine. Nouns ending -o are masculine; those ending -a, feminine. For example, (the) table, il tavolo, or (the) house, la casa. A few nouns end in -e, e.g., il caffè. Generally the -e nouns are masculine, but there are exceptions, such as la stazione.

Articles match the gender of the noun. A notable rule is that nouns that start with z or the combination s + consonant have different articles from the usual un/il/la-, as illustrated in Table 1.1. Plurals end in -i for masculine and -e for feminine, typically replacing the terminal -o and -a with -o and -e respectively.

masc.		fem.		Notes
a table	un tavolo	a house	una casa
the table	il tavolo	the house	la casa
the tables	i tavoli	the houses	le case
an uncle	uno zio	an aunt	una zia	Nouns starting z-
the uncle	il zio	the aunt	la zia
the uncles	gli zii	the aunts	le zie
a receipt	uno scontrino	a station	una stazione	Nouns starting s+consonant
the receipt	lo scontrino	the station	la stazione
the receipts	gli scontrini	the stations	le stazione

Table 1.1: Articles

1.1.2 Adjectives

Adjectives have a base form ending with -o or -e. The former change their ending to -a when used with feminine singular nouns. For example rosso, red, is rosso for masculine and rossa for feminine singular nouns. On the other hand, an -e adjective like grande is just grande in the singular for both genders of noun. Whatever the adjective, there must be consistency between the noun and adjective in terms of gender (masculine or feminine) and number (singular or plural). This includes the speaker when the adjective applies to them (i.e., the speaker is the noun).

Plural adjectives normally end like the same-gendered noun, e.g., masculine plural nouns end in -i most of the time, so adjectives describing such nouns end in -i as well: tavolo → tavoli and tavolo rosso → tavoli rossi. Similarly, la donna alta → le donne alte. But, of course there will be exceptions.

Examples

- The gelato is good.
  Il gelato è buono.
- The pizza is good.
  La pizza è buona.
- Claudio is tired.
  Claudio è stanco.
- Francesca is glad.
  Francesca è contenta.
- The coffee is good.
  Il caffè è buono.
- The pizza is not good.
  La pizza non è buona.

Most adjectives go after the noun, but adjectives of quantity (molto), possession (mio, tuo, sua, etc.) go before. Some adjectives that normally go after can go before to stress a point or to subtly alter the sense of the phrase. For example, compare "My car is new" with "My new car". The adjective grande is a case in point: when used after a noun, it describes 'big'-ness. Used before a noun, it describes 'great'-ness, as in, "London is a big city" vs. "London is a great city". As an adjective, molto is pluralized following the standard rules, e.g. molti tavoli or molte stazioni.

Examples

- The red house.
  La casa rossa.
- The new car.
  La macchina nuova.
- The new car.
  La nuova macchina.
- My wife.
  La mia moglie.
- His daughter.
  La sua figlia.
- Rome is a big city.
  Roma è una città grande.

- Rome is a great city. (As in, historic, magnificent, special)
  Roma è una grande città.
- Un tavolo caro.
  An expensive table.
- Umberto is my dear uncle. (Affection)
  Umberto è mio caro zio.

Italian seems to have a similar 'BANGS' rule to French: adjectives go after the noun unless they talk about Beauty, Age, Numbers, Goodness, or Size. See the Appendix.

1.1.3 Quantitative adjectives - molto

The word molto can act as an adjective, preceding a noun ("I have a lot of patience", "I don't do much sport"). In these cases it changes to match the noun.

However, molto can also act an adverb, ("Ravenna is very beautiful"), and an adverb-like modifier to a verb ("I like this car a lot"). In these cases, it does not need to change.

Examples

- I talk a lot.
  Io parlo molto.
  No change to molto. It is being used as an adverb to parlo.
- I don't talk much.
  Io non parlo molto.
  No change to molto. It is being used as an adverb to parlo.
- A lot of pasta, please.
  Molta pasta, per favore.
  Adjective for pasta, so molto must change to molta to match gender.
- (Claudio says . . .) I am very tired.
  Io sono molto stanco.
  No change to molto. It is an adverb to sono.
- (Francesca says . . .) I am very tired.
  Io sono molto stanca.
  No change to molto. It is an adverb to sono. (Notice that stanca does take the -a ending, as it is an adjective that applies to Francesca.)
- I have a lot of dogs.
  Io ho molti cani.
  Adjective for cani, so molti is required to match the plurality of cane.
- Italy is very beautiful.
  L'Italia è molto bella.
  Adverb for è, so no change to molto needed.
- The pizza is very good.
  La pizza è molto buona.
  Adverb for è, so no change to molto needed.

1.1.4 The simple negation - non

Statements can be negated by putting non between the subject and the verb.

Examples

- Francesca is not tired.
  Francesca non è stanca.
- The pizza is not good.
  La pizza non è buona.
- I am not tired, because I am not at work today.
  Io non sono stanco, perché io non sono a lavoro oggi.

1.2 Vocabulary

his/her	il suo tavolo	his/her	il suo gelato

Table 3.1: ATPG

3.2 Pronunciation

Most consonants are pronounced as in English, but there are some rules to note:

1. M / N / P / Q / R / S / T are identical.
2. H at the start of a word is silent.
3. Vowels a, e, and i are pronounced like English 'ah', 'eh', and 'ih'.
4. Pairs of the same consonants are emphasized (which implicitly induces a tiny pause when spoken): bello is pronounced like bel-lo, not belo.
5. Letters c- and g- normally have a hard sound with their following vowel, e.g. ca, go, gu sound as they do in English.

6. However, the ce and ci pairs are 'ch'-sounds, like English 'cello' or 'cheese'.
7. Similarly, the ge and gi pairs are 'j'-sounds, like English 'general'.
8. The combinations sce and sci are soft, like English 'scene' and 'science'.

Watch out for ch and gh combinations: the presence of the h makes for a hard sound. The food bruschetta is broos-KET-ta not broo-SHET-uh, no matter what the server at Olive Garden says. Another example: pesce, PEH-sheh is 'fish' but pesche, PES-keh is 'peaches'.

3.3 Grammar

3.3.1 More on stare and essere

- stare to be, to stay: io sto, tu stai. Remember, stare is never followed by an adjective.
- essere to be: io sono, iu sei
- avere to be: io ho, tu hai

Examples

- I am happy because this evening I am eating spaghetti carbonara.
  Io sono felice perché questa sera io sto mangiando spaghetti carbonara.
- You are not happy because you are cooking spaghetti carbonara.
  Tu non sei felice perché tu stai cucinando spaghetti carbonara.
- I am buying a coffee this morning.
  Io sto comprando un caffè questa mattina.
- You are tired, because you cook a lot.
  Tu sei stanca, perché tu stai cucinando molto.
- I am not happy because you have a lot of pasta and I do not.
  Io non sono felice perché tu hai molta pasta e io non ho.

3.3.2 Possessive adjectives

Possessive adjectives 'my', 'his' or 'hers', 'your', etc. are mio, suo, and tuo in their Italian base forms. They change ending just like other adjectives to match the noun being discussed. The phrase, "The my car is a beautiful car" is incorrect in English, but would be correct in Italian. Most of the time, we use articles with possessive adjectives.

Exception When we talk about family members, we omit the article.

Examples

- My car is a beautiful car.
  La mia macchina è una bella macchina.
- My brother is tired.
  Mio fratello è stanco.
- I am happy because I am driving my new car.
  Io sono felice, perché io sto guidando la mia nuova macchina.
- I am working with my computer this morning.
  Io sto lavorando con il mio computer questa mattina.

3.5 Homework

1. I'm happy because I'm studying Italian.
   Io sono felice perché io sto studiando italiano.
2. I'm not feeling well because I don't have a new car.
   Io non sto bene perché io non ho una nuova macchina.
3. I'm tired, because I'm drinking a lot of wine.
   Io sono stanco, perché io sto bevando molto vino.

4. I'm tired, because I'm working today.
   Io sono stanco, perché io sto lavorando oggi.

5. My brother isn't doing well, because my car is very small.
   Mio fratello non sta bene, perché la mia auto è molto piccola.

6. My wife is happy, because you are eating your pasta.
   Mia moglie è contenta, perché tu stai mangiando la tua pasta.

7. My sister is feeling unwell, because you are cooking spaghetti.
   Mia sorella sta male, perché tu stai cucinando spaghetti.

8. Aren't you driving your new car today?
   Tu non stai guidando la tua nuova auto oggi?

9. I'm buying my coffee.
   Io sto comprando il mio caffè.

10. I'm fine, because my husband is talking.
    Io sto bene, perché mio marito sta parlando.

Chapter 4

Feb 7

Topics Grammar recap, More about adjectives, Possessive adjectives revisited

4.1 Grammar

4.1.1 Review

- essere: Io sono, tu sei, lui/lei è, noi siamo, voi siete, loro sono
- avere: Io ho, tu hai, lui/lei ha, noi abbiamo, voi avete, loro hanno
- stare: Io sto, tu stai, lui/lei sta, noi stiamo, voi state, loro stanno

Examples

- You are happy because you stay at your home.
  Tu sei felice perché tu stai a tua casa.
- I am studying Italian today.
  Io sto studiando oggi.
- I am happy because I have a new car.
  Io sono felice perché io ho una nuova macchina.[1]
- I am happy because I have the car.
  Io sono felice perché io ho la macchina.
- The car is beautiful.
  La macchina è bella.
- I am talking now.
  Io sto parlando adesso.
- Claudio is driving now.
  Claudio sta guidando adesso.
- I am not happy because I am not eating pizza.
  Io non sono felice perché io non sto mangiando la pizza.

[1] Macchina is more common and less formal than auto, like 'car' vs. 'automobile' or 'vehicle'.

- You are sad because you do not have a new car.
  Tu sei triste perché tu non hai una nuova macchina / auto.

- I am good.
  Io sono bravo. (performance)

- I am a good dad.
  Io sono un buon papà.[2]

- I am good (when you are asked the question "how are you").
  Io sto bene.

- I am not happy because my wife is not cooking pizza this evening / tonight.
  Io non sono felice perché mia moglie non sta cucinando la pizza questa sera.

- This book is a good book.
  Questo libro è un buon libro.

4.1.2 Adjectives - buono / bello / quello

The adjectives buono, bello, and quello ('good', 'beautiful', and 'that', respectively) have a different spelling when they are used before a masculine noun. See Table 4.1. The adjectives are not shortened for feminine nouns.

base form	becomes...	example
buono	buon	Un buon gelato
bello	bel	Un bel telefono
quello	quel	Quel tavolo

Table 4.1: Buono, bello, and quello adjectives preceding masculine nouns

Examples

- Good day!
  Buon giorno!

- It's a good gelato.
  È un buon gelato.

- That gelato is good.
  Quel gelato è buono.

- It's a good pizza.
  È una buona pizza.

- This pizza is good.
  Questa pizza è buona.

[2] Accents matter ... Papà is 'dad' but Papa is 'Pope'.

4.1.3 Possessive adjectives

Saying, "The my car is red" is wrong in English. Italian on the other hand uses this construction, with the articles, a lot, and especially with possessive adjectives.

Possessive adjectives change ending to match the number and gender of the noun that they relate to, just like other adjectives. For example, la sua macchina can mean 'his car' or 'her car', because the sua matches the noun macchina.

adjective	meaning	example
mio	my, mine	Il mio gelato
mia		La mia macchina
tuo	your sing.	Il tuo gelato
tua	your sing.	La tua macchina
suo	his/her	Il suo gelato
sua		La sua macchina
nostro	our	Il nostro vino
nostra	our	La nostra macchina
vostro	your pl.[3]	Il vostro vino
vostra	your pl.	La vostra macchina

Table 4.2: Possessive adjectives

Remember that when we talk about family members (humans, not the dog!) we can drop the article, e.g., mia moglie instead of la mia moglie.

Examples

- My car is red.
  La mia macchina è rossa.
- His car is red.
  La sua macchina è rossa.
- Our son is very happy because he has a new car.
  Nostro figlio è molto felice perché lui ha una nuova macchina.
- My dog is very intelligent.
  Il mio cane è molto intelligente.
- My red wine is very good.
  Il mio vino rosso è molto buono.
- Your wine is very good. (Talking to a group.)
  Il vostro vino è molto buono.
- Your wine is very good. (Talking to an individual.)
  Il tuo vino è molto buono.
- My husband is not cooking pasta tonight.
  Mio marito non sta cucinando la pasta questa sera.

[3] Plural as in "you all's" or "y'all's"

4.2 Vocabulary

4.2.1 Verbs - lavorare and other -are examples

expensive	un tavolo caro	expensive	una casa cara
his	il suo tavolo	new	la sua casa

Table 5.1: ATPG, Feb 21

5.2 Grammar

5.2.1 Articles - singular nouns

1. il for masculine nouns. Il gelato.
2. la for feminine nouns. La macchina.
3. l' for nouns starting with vowels. L'arancia, l'albergo.
4. lo for masculine nouns starting z or s + consonant.

5.2.2 Prepositions

A preposition is a word that shows the relation of one noun to another. For example, 'of', 'of the', 'on', 'with', or 'under'. The most flexible in everyday use is 'of / of the': di, del, della, expressing 'possession' and sometimes, 'specification'.

- Claudio's wine.
  Il vino di Claudio.
- Claudio's brother's wine.
  Il vino del fratello di Claudio.
- Claudio's mother's wine.
  Il vino della mamma di Claudio.
- A bottle of red wine.
  Una bottiglia di vino rosso.

on - su, sul, sulla When we have something 'over' something.

- The wine is on a table.
  Il vino è su un tavolo.
- The wine is on the table.
  Il vino è sul tavolo.
- The wine is on the car.
  Il vino è sulla macchina.

in - in, nel, nella When we have something 'in' something.

- The wallet is in the drawer.
  Il portafoglio è nel cassetto.
- The wallet is in the car.
  Il portafoglio è nella macchina.
- The wine is in his car.
  Il vino è nella sua macchina.

> If you are using the above prepositions with possessive adjectives, you do not need the article. Essentially the preposition includes it 'automatically', e.g. 'in his car' is nella sua macchina and not nel la sua macchina nor nella la sua macchina.

for, with, between - per, con, tra These prepositions are not combined with articles, and act as one word.

- I'm talking with my friend.
  Io sto parlando con il mio amico.
- You are driving between home and work today.
  Tu sta guidando tra casa e lavoro oggi.
- I have to work for money.
  Io devo lavorare per soldi.

6.2 Grammar

6.2.1 Prepositions revisited

Prepositions express spatial or temporal relations (in, under, on, between, etc.) or have a semantic roles (of, for). They precede a noun. See Table 6.3.

with	con	for	per
between	tra	under	sotto
of	di[3]	of the	del, della
on	su	on the	sul, sulla
in the	nel, nella

Table 6.3: Common prepositions

[3] A notable exception is di + Italia, which becomes d'Italia.

6.2.2 Prepositions with locations

Certain nouns, related to locations, require a specific preposition to represent 'in'/'at'. For example, Italian uses a for cities and towns, and in for states and countries. For example, Io vivo a Denver, in Stati Uniti. More details in Table 6.4.

in/at home	a casa	...the store	al negozio	...the restroom	in bagno
...work	a lavoro	...the restaurant	al ristorante	...the church	in chiesa
...Rome	a Roma	...the mall	al centro commerciale	...Italy	in Italia

Table 6.4: Location prepositions - special cases

Examples

- I'm very happy because I am eating a pizza with Claudio at the restaurant.
  Io sono molto felice perché sto mangiando la pizza con Claudio al ristorante.

- I'm at home because I am sick.
  Io sono a casa perché io sono malato.

- I'm not at work because I am unwell.
  Io non sono a lavoro perché io sto male.

- I'm buying lots of things at the shopping center.
  Io sto comprando molte cose al centro commerciale.

- I'm driving Claudio's Maserati because I'm going to the store.
  Io sto guidando la Maserati di Claudio perché io sto andando al negozio.

6.2.3 Using the verbs stare and essere

The concept of to be spans two verbs in Italian: essere and stare. For now, consider essere as expressing presence, or a state that would use an adjective, whereas stare expresses a location, an ongoing action, or a state that would use an adverb.

In colloquial US English, compare the response to the greeting 'How are you?':

- I am happy. (Verb to be + adjective happy.)
- I am doing well. (Compound verb to be doing + adverb well.)

In Italian:

- I am happy. (Verb: Io sono + adjective felice.)
- I am doing well. (Compound verb: Io sto + adverb bene.)

In the US, people sometimes say "I'm doing good" but this is, strictly, ungrammatical English, and it wold be a mistake to carry that forward into Italian. It would be incorrect to say this, because stare takes an adverb not an adjective:

- (Incorrect!) Io sto buono.

Examples

- How are you?
  Come stai?
- I am fine.
  Io sto bene.
- I am not well.
  Io non sto bene.
- I am unwell.
  Io sto male.
- I am sick.
  Io sono malato.
- I am happy.
  Io sono felice.
- We are happy.
  Noi siamo felice.

6.2.4 The present progressive tense: stare + gerund

The verb stare is used to construct the present progressive tense, where the speaker expresses something that is still happening. In English this would be, for example, "I am talking" in contrast to "I talk". The '-ing' form is a gerund. In Italian, gerunds end in -ando for -are verbs and -endo for -ire and -ere verbs .

Examples

- I am speaking.
  Io sto parlando.
- She is eating.
  Lei sta mangiando.
- We are speaking.
  Noi stiamo parlando.
- You are drinking.
  Tu stai bevendo.
- Claudio is driving his car.
  Claudio sta guidando la sua macchina.

Mangiare* - to eat The verb mangiare is pretty simple in the present tense (Table 6.6). In the present continuous form (i.e., with stare), the gerund mangiando is used, e.g., io sto mangiando, I am eating. The present conditional form, 'would eat', is shown in the same table. For example you might say, in a restaurant, Io mangerei la pasta, literally, "I would eat the pasta", but more colloquially rendered as, "I'll have the pasta".

Topics Modal verbs, shopping, recap of verbs, quello and questo, more and less - più

7.1 Grammar

7.1.1 Modal verbs

A modal verb expresses sentiments like request, capability, and obligation. Used with the infinitive. Italian modal verbs: volere (to want), potere (to be able), dovere (to have to). E.g. 'want to eat' would be a conjugated form of volere 'want' with the infinitive mangiare 'to eat.' See Table 7.1.

potere	to be able	volere	to want	dovere	to have to
io	posso	io	voglio	io	devo
tu	puoi	tu	vuoi	tu	devi

noi	possiamo	noi	vogliamo	noi	dobbiamo
voi	potete	voi	volete	voi	dovete
loro	possono	loro	vogliono	loro	devono

Table 7.1: Modal verbs, present tense

Examples

- I want a coffee.
  Io voglio un caffè.
- I want to buy a coffee.
  Io voglio comprare un caffè.
- I can pay.
  Io posso pagare.
- I have to pay.
  Io devo pagare.

7.1.2 Conditional usage

Just as in English, modal verbs are commonly expressed in a conditional form ("could, would, should"). E.g., it is more polite to say, "I would like" than "I want".

Examples

- I would like a coffee.
  Io vorrei un caffè.

- I would like to buy a coffee.
  Io vorrei comprare un caffè.

- Could I pay?
  Io potrei pagare?

- Should I pay?
  Io dovrei pagare?

7.1.3 This and that: quello and questo

We use demonstrative adjectives to show the thing we are talking about: 'this' or 'that' thing under discussion. As adjectives, they change ending to match the noun, e.g., 'this': questo, questa, 'that': quello, quella. See 7.2.

If quello is used before a masculine singular noun, it is shortened to quel, similarly to how bello becomes bel.

[Staa] has a good explanation.

7.2.2 Phrases - speaking about speaking Italian

- Io parlo italiano ma io sono un principiante.
  I speak Italian, but I'm a beginner.
- Puoi ripetere?
  Can you repeat?
- Per favore, parla lento.
  Please, speak slowly.
- Io parlo un po' italiano.
  I speak a little Italian. [2]

7.2.3 Phrases - more and less

The word più is used with nouns or adjectives to express more-ness. This can go in both directions, e.g. 'more small' and 'more big'. In the other direction, meno represents less-ness.

- More water, please.
  Più acqua, per favore.
- Smaller.
  Più piccolo.
- Bigger.
  Più grande.

7.3 Conversation: Al negozio

Luigi Good morning. Can I help you?
Buongiorno. Posso aiutare?

[1] It is expected practice to ask for a receipt for a transaction, and in fact you may be asked to produce one after leaving a business by the authorities.

[2] Contrast po', expressing a limit, to poco, representing quantity ('few').

Francesca Hello. Yes. I want to buy a pair of shoes, please.
Salve. Sì. Io vorrei comprare un paio di scarpe, per favore.

Luigi What size?
Quale misura?

Francesca Forty, thanks. I need to also buy an elegant dress for this evening.
40, grazie. Io devo comprare anche un vestito elegante per questa sera.

Luigi What size?
Quale taglia?

Francesca Smaller. Medium please. How much does it cost?
Più piccolo. Media per favore. Quanto costa?

7.4 Homework

1. I am very happy because I am eating Claudio's pizza.
   Io sono molto felice perché sto mangiando la pizza di Claudio.

2. Claudio is not happy because I am eating Claudio's pizza.
   Claudio non è felice, perché io sto mangiando la sua pizza.

3. Your glass of wine is on the table.
   Il tuo bicchiere di vino è sul tavolo.

4. His bottle of wine is very expensive.
   La sua bottiglia di vino è molto cara.

5. We are studying Italian with Claudio's book.
   Noi stiamo studiando italiano con il libro di Claudio.

6. My wallet is in the car.

Topics Irregular verbs: fare and andare. Imperative tense. Pronunciation tips, directions, need. Homework review.

8.1 Grammar

8.1.1 Irregular verbs: fare and andare

Some verbs you just have to know. Two important ones are fare, to do/to make, and andare, to go. Fare is used in lots of idiomatic expressions. See Table 8.1.

	fare	andare
io	faccio	vado
tu	fai	vai
lui/lei	fa	va
noi	facciamo	andiamo
gerund	facendo	andando

Table 8.1: Fare and andare, two common irregular verbs

Examples

- I'm taking a shower.
  Io faccio la doccia
- What do you do for work?[1]
  Cosa fai per lavoro?
- I'm very happy because I'm making pizza this evening.
  Io sono molto felice perché io faccio la pizza questa sera.
- Are you making lasagne tonight?
  Tu stai facendo lasagne questa sera?

[1] Culturally, asking about your job is not really done in Italy.

- We are making a cake for you.
  Noi facciamo una torta per te.

- I'm going to the store.
  Io sto andando al negozio.

- I need to go to the store.
  Io ho bisogno di andare al negozio.

- Are you going on vacation?
  Tu vai in vacanza? or Tu stai andando in vacanza?

8.1.2 The imperative tense

This verb form is used to offer suggestions or commands from the speaker to a listener. Consequently, it only exists in the second person and first person plural. For example, in Table 8.2, the commands would be "Speak!" and "Let's talk!"

	present	imperative
io	parlo
tu	parli	parla
lui/lei	parla
noi	parliamo	parliamo
voi	parlate	parlate

Table 8.2: Comparison of present and imperative verb tense, with parlare

Examples

- Eat! Eat!
  Mangia, mangia!

- Let's go!
  Andiamo!

- Drive!
  Guida!

- Listen!
  Ascolta!

- Wait!
  Aspetta!

- Get in! (e.g., a car)
  Entra!

8.2 Pronunciation review

See Section 3.2 from the Jan 31 class as well.

1. Emphasize the double consonants: bello is not said the same as belo!
2. Understand the soft sounds . . . : ci, ce, gi, ge get the same consonantal sounds as English 'ch' and 'j'.
3. . . . they are different from the hard sounds: cu, co, ca, gu, go, ga.
4. Mnemonic: adding h adds a hard sound, e.g., ce → che changes sound from 'cheh' → 'keh'.[2]
5. Most consonants sound the same, e.g., t, m, n, p, q, r, s.
6. The usual place for stress is on the penultimate syllable. Accents can override this, e.g., in caffè.

8.3 Vocabulary

8.3.1 Words

roof	tetto

Table 8.3: Vocab review, Mar 28

8.3.2 Phrases - Getting directions

When you ask for directions, e.g., by asking, "Dov'è il Colosseo?", you are likely to get back a sequence of instructions in the imperative tense: 'turn left at the lights', 'go straight', etc. The same works in Italian.

infinitive	imperative	Example
andare	vai	Vai diritto	Go straight
girare	gira	Gira a destra	Turn right
svoltare	svolta	Al semaforo, svolta a sinistra	At the lights, turn left
tornare	torna	Torna indietro	Turn around
passare	passa	Passa la chiesa	Pass the church

Table 8.4: Some imperatives, used in giving directions

Some other useful words for directions (8.5):

[2] Classic example: pesce 'pes-sheh', fish vs. pesche, 'pes-keh', 'peach'.

right	a destra
near	vicino
far	lontano
after	dopo
intersection	incrocio
traffic light	semaforo
stop (transit)	fermata

Table 8.5: Some common terms, used in giving directions

Examples

- At the intersection, turn left.
  Al semaforo, gira a sinistra.
- This is my stop.
  Questa è la mia fermata.
- The church is not far away.
  La chiesa non è lontana.
- At the next intersection, turn right, then left.
  Al prossimo incrocio, gira a destra, e poi a sinistra.
- Turn around at the bank, and go straight ahead.
  Torna indietro al banca, e vai diritto.

8.3.3 avere bisogno di - to have need of

Use the three word combination of avere, bisogno, and di to express 'to have a need of' something.

- I need a coffee.
  Io ho bisogno di un caffè.

8.4 Homework

1. I would drive but I am very tired.
   Io guiderei, ma sono molto stanco.
2. I want to buy the wine at the restaurant.
   Io voglio comprare il vino al ristorante.
3. I can't talk now. I am working.
   Io non posso parlare adesso. Io sto lavorando.
4. I would like to order, please.
   Vorrei ordinare, per favore.
5. More wine, please.
   Più vino, per favore.

6. Nice to meet you. My name is (your name).
   Piacere. Il mio nome è Shriman.

7. Hello. I would like to buy a bottle of wine for my friend.
   Salve. Vorrei comprare una bottiglia di vino per il mio amico.

8. Where is a bank?
   Dov'è una banca?

9. I am fine, thank you. And you?
   Io sto bene, grazie. E tu?

10. I am on vacation for one week.
    Io sono in vacanza per un settimana.

11. The wine is in the car.
    Il vino è nella macchina.

12. Is there a discount?
    C'è uno sconto?

13. I am studying Italian in Virginia.
    Io sto studiando italiano in Virginia.

14. I can't. I am at work now.
    Non posso. Io sono a lavoro adesso.

15. Hello. We have a reservation for two.
    Salve. Noi abbiamo una prenotazione per due.

16. The pizza in this restaurant is very good.
    La pizza in questo ristorante è molto buona.

17. I would like the bill, please. We are ready.
    Vorrei il conto, per favore. Siamo pronti.

18. My friend does not speak Italian. I speak a little Italian.
    Il mio amico non parla italiano. Io parlo un po' d'italiano

19. I would try this dish. Thank you.
    Io proverei questo piatto. Grazie.

20. Can I have a bottle of natural water, please?
    Posso avere una bottiglia d'acqua naturale, per favore?

Topics Numbers. Time. -are verb form recap. Sentence review.

9.1 Grammar

9.1.1 Numbers

See Table 9.1. Numbers are one of those things you just have to learn.

#		#		#
0	zero	7	sette	14	quattordici
1	uno	8	otto	15	quindici
2	due	9	nove	16	sedici
3	tre	10	dieci	17	diciassette
4	quattro	11	undici	18	diciotto
5	cinque	12	dodici	19	diciannove
6	sei	13	tredici	20	venti

Table 9.1: Numbers zero through twenty

Once the base forms are learned, e.g., venti, 'twenty', compound forms like 'twenty-one' are easy to figure out.

#		#
10	dieci	70	settanta
20	venti	80	ottanta
30	trenta	90	novanta
40	quaranta	100	cento
50	cinquanta	1000	mille
60	sessanta

Table 9.2: Multiples of ten and one hundred

For large numbers (thousands), you would speak the thousands part, then e, and then the remainder. Phone numbers can be read out number by number: 'seven-zero-nine' / 'sette-zero-nove' style.

Examples

- Twenty-five
  Venticinque
- One hundred and twenty-five
  Centoventicinque
- €2350
  Due milla e trecentocinquanta euro.

Note: The word 'euro' is pronounced like Eh-OO-roh, not YOO-roh.

9.1.2 Time

Clocks in Italy use the 24-hour system for official business, such as train times, although speakers might use expressions like di sera in casual conversation. So for example a train announcer might say Il treno per Bologna parte alle quindici but you might refer to the time as tre di sera. Notice how di sera spans everything after noon, and not just the evening time.

Examples

- Six PM
  Diciotto. or Sei di sera.
- Six AM
  Sei di mattina.

9.1.3 Verb recap: the regular -are form

See Table 9.3 as an example. The regular verbs ending -are can be conjugated, in their present tense, by stripping off the -are ending and adding -o, -i, -a, -iamo, -ate, -ano. For example, io porto, 'I bring' from portare, 'to bring, to deliver'.

portare	to bring
io	porto
tu	porti
lui/lei	porta
noi	portiamo
voi	portate
loro	portano

Table 9.3: An example of a regular -are verb: portare

9.1.4 Verb recap: the regular -ire form

See Table 9.4 as an example. The regular verbs ending -ire can be conjugated, in their present tense, by stripping off the -ire ending and adding -o, -i, -e, -iamo, -ite, -ono. For example, io apro, 'I open' from aprire, 'to open'. A second group of -ire verbs, not covered here, uses endings like -isco, e.g., io capisco from capire, 'to understand'. See [Law].

aprire	to open
io	apro
tu	apri
lui/lei	apre
noi	apriamo
voi	aprite
loro	aprono

10.1.2 Here and there - qui, qua, lì, and là

English speakers use 'here' and 'there' to refer to both generalized and specific locations, with stress making the distinction. 'I left my keys here.' versus 'I left my keys here.' In Italian, different adverbs are used, as shown in 10.1. [1] Also see [Bro25].

here	qua	general vicinity
there	là	general vicinity
here	qui	specific location
there	lì	specific location
